
Jeff Ringhausen

Office of Naval Intelligence Senior Naval Intelligence Manager Russia and Eurasia

Jeff Ringhausen is the Senior Naval Intelligence Manager for Russia and Eurasia at the Office of Naval Intelligence. In this position he supports the Commander of the Office of Naval Intelligence in delivering comprehensive and full intelligence cycle support to meet the needs of the Navy, the nation and Intelligence Community. He was appointed to Defense Intelligence Senior Level in August of 2018.

Mr. Ringhausen's background is in tactical, operational and strategic intelligence analysis. He has served in a variety of positions in naval intelligence supporting analysis for national and EUCOM priorities. His joint duty assignment was in the Office of the Secretary of Defense (OSD) Policy where he was the desk officer for Ukraine and Belarus.

Mr. Ringhausen graduated from the University of Georgia (2002 BA and 2005 MA in Geography) and the University of North Carolina Chapel Hill (2007 MA in Russian and Eastern European Studies). His academic studies focused on geographic information systems, Russian language, Russian history, and quantitative and qualitative analytic methodologies.

Updated 10/18