CHAPTER 7
CHECKLISTS

Section I. JOINT GUARD OF HONOR

140. Definitions. a. The Joint Guard of Honor is a ceremonial guard detail. It has the mission of providing security for the remains of the deceased while they lie in repose and/or while they lie in state. They also display continuous respect to the deceased by faultless military precision and bearing while performing their duties.

b. The Joint Guard of Honor is a joint service detail with commissioned and noncommissioned officers and enlisted men from each of the five services. See paragraph 144. The very nature of the detail plus the unusual physical and mental requirements make it imperative that the members of this detail be carefully selected.

141. Posting and changing reliefs. a. The first relief is posted as soon as the body has been placed within the place of repose or the place of lying in state. The body bearers will remain in position facing the casket. This relief marches directly to its position as in c below, and executes the first nine counts of the 14 count silent guard change. Only the OICs will execute the 11th through 14th count. The body bearers will execute the hand salute on the count of three and hold the salute until the count of seven, then drop their hands. The body bearers will face on the 14th count and step off on the 15th count towards the exit.

b. One sentinel is posted at each corner of the casket and faces in the direction shown (fig 1 and 2). The commander of the relief is posted one pace from the head of the casket and facing it. The supernumerary is posted in an inconspicuous place, but where he can see the relief commander.

c. One minute before the relief is to be posted, the relief is marched in a column of twos, with the officer in front to the entrance of the room where the remains lie. See figure 1. The officer halts the guard prior to marching into the room and insures that his route is clear. When the route is clear, the officer advances the guard. At a predetermined point the new sentries and the commander of the relief take the most direct route to their positions, each just to the left of the man he is to relieve. When all sentinels are in position, the new commander of the relief clears his throat to gain the attention of all members of the relief. The officers then salute, touching the bill of their caps with their fingertips, which is the signal for the sentries to begin a silent 14 count movement, starting with zero.

0 Count—Pause.
1st Count—Pause.
2d Count—Sentries begin 1st count, Present Arms.
3d Count—Sentries complete 1st count, begin 2d count.
4th Count—Sentries complete Present Arms, 2d count.
5th Count—Pause.
6th Count—Sentries begin 1st count, Order Arms.
7th Count—Sentries complete 1st count begin 2d count.
8th Count—Sentries complete 2d count, begin 3d count.
9th Count—Sentries complete Order Arms, 3d count.
10th Count—Pause.
11th Count—Commander of the old relief and sentinels begin movement of one pace to their rear.
12th Count—Commander of the new relief and sentinels complete movement and are at ATTENTION.

13th Count—Commander of the new relief and sentinels begin movement of one step to their right.

14th Count—Commander of the new relief and sentinels complete movement to their right and are at ATTENTION.

The relief is now complete.

d. The old commander of the relief then faces about and clicks his heels, the old sentries and commander of the relief start counting again. On the count of three, they step off toward the exit, meeting at a predesignated point and continue the march from the place of repose. The supernumerary falls in at rear as the relief exits.

e. Changing of positions during reliefs: Personnel guarding the remains stand at ATTENTION or PARADE REST. The commander of the relief signals the sentinels to change positions (at approximately 5-minute intervals or whenever he deems it necessary) by executing the movement himself. The sentinels then silently count, “one, two, three”. The sentinels simultaneously execute the movements required to assume the new position on the 3d count.

f. One minute before the repose or lying in state ends, the body bearers will take their positions on each side of the casket, facing the casket. The escort officer will take a position to the left of the relief commander. The escort officer will signal by clearing his throat and the sentinels, as in c above, and the body bearers, as in a above, will execute the 14th count silent change. Only the two OICs will execute the eleventh through fourteenth count. The guard of honor will leave as in d, above.

142. Special instructions. a. Duties of personnel.

(1) Commander of the joint guard of honor—

(a) Is responsible for the instruction, discipline, presence, and performance of duty of guard.

(b) Also serves as commander of day shift.

(c) Is responsible for placing floral tributes on the bier. He will use personnel of the joint guard of honor who are not on post. The following procedure will be used. The commander of the guard bearing the wreath will approach the bier. Two members of the guard not on duty will flank them on each side without weapons. The party will halt six steps from the casket. The commander of the relief on duty will observe the party moving into position. When the party halts he will come to ATTENTION. The sentinels will pause two counts and come to ATTENTION. After the sentinels come to ATTENTION the commander of the guard will move forward with the two flanking men and place the wreath. He and the escort men step back one step and salute together. Sentinels do not salute. Commander of the guard and escorts hold the salute one count, cut away, face about, step off. When commander of the guard steps off, the commander of the relief will come to PARADE REST on third count. Wreaths remain in position 15 minutes or until next change of relief, whichever is shorter. The commander of guard will move out alone, salute, secure wreath once more, and move away to a preplanned floral tribute area.

(2) Commanders of the reliefs will—

(a) Insure that there is no disorderly or improper conduct on the part of any person or persons in the vicinity of the casket.

(b) Insure the prompt and efficient performance of duties by the sentinels of their relief.

(c) Insure that all sentinels of their relief fall out on time and in proper uniform.

(d) Inspect all sentinels of their relief, instructing them as to their orders.
and duties, and making certain that they understand them.

(e) Insure that the changes from one position to the other are made simultaneously by all members of the relief.

(f) Insure that the members of the relief, when not on duty, stay at their assigned area and conduct themselves properly.

(g) Act as duty officer after coming off post.

b. General.

(1) The guard will change every 30 minutes, on the hour and the half hour.

(2) The supernumerary will change with each guard relief.

(3) All marching will be done with a 30-inch step.

(4) Care will be exercised to insure that sentinels do not make any noticeable facial movement such as moving the eyes, licking lips, etc.

(5) Heel clicks will be distinct.

(6) All counting, movements, and marching will be done at slow cadence.

(7) Relief commanders will not change positions while visitors are close to the casket, viewing the body, or in prayer beside the casket.

(8) If a man feels as though he is going to fall out he assumes the position of attention or parade rest, depending on which position he is in and then back to his original position. The supernumerary will move and take his place.

(9) Each relief will be ready to go 15 minutes prior to posting time. The relief commander will inspect his relief at this time and also rehearse the 14 count silent change at least one time.

(10) The relief commander will march his relief from the guard quarters to the entrance of the place of repose or place of lying in state and wait for the nod of the old relief commander. This is done so that if the next of kin is in prayer the change will not disturb them.

(11) No verbal commands will be given inside the place of repose or lying in state.

144. Organization of shifts and reliefs.
